

| Question | Answer | Mark | Mark scheme                                                                                                                                                                                            | Additional guidance                       |
|----------|--------|------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------|
| 13       | 435    | M1   | for start to method of finding the number of pairs, eg $30 \times 29 (= 870)$ oeor $\frac{30 \times 29}{2}$or clear intention to sum the integers from 1 to 29eg $29 + 28 + \dots + 2 + 1$ | M1 for $\frac{1}{30} \times \frac{1}{29}$ |
|          |        | A1   | cao                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                           |